

Adult Literacy Project

Read and write

the reality to be free

It is an adult training proposal, aimed at acquiring reading and writing skills and mathematical thinking, in a critical, basic and reflexive way, which allows them to understand and transform their reality.

It contributes to the restitution of the right to education that has historically been denied to the population in vulnerable conditions.

Literacy is a process that imply the recognition of adults as citizens who have built a very valuable life story, which they can develop for their own learning process; this is why it includes the psychosocial support component as an integrating and transversal element.

Target audiences

People over 16 years of age, who cannot read and write or who have not completed the first three grades of primary education.

Project Purposes

- Achieve a development of basic skills for reading, writing and mathematical thinking to assume their interpretative, comprehensive and critical reality.
- Obtain elements and strategies of psychosocial support to transversally strengthen their personal and family training cycle.
- Strengthen their interpersonal relationships.
- Become visible, feel useful and productive.
- Improve their family relationships.
- Recognize their environment and learn how to use it.
- Strengthen as a citizen their rights and duties.

How to become linked

Duration: the pedagogical proposal is developed in 400 hours, distributed over 10 months at no cost.

Where we teach: in Community Action Boards, headquarters, library parks, halls or classrooms offered by organizations or institutions of the same community.

Access way: conduct a survey in your community about illiteracy in adults. Sensitize and make a call for pre-registrations of at least 15 people, maximum 25 people per group.
