Donations

In December 2018, OpenFees set out to raise N5.6 million through #Project3S campaign for the completion of the senior secondary school of 100 poor children. Through Individual and board members' donations, we raised a total of N4,455,400 for the WAEC and NECO fees of our beneficiaries. Although these students have now concluded their upper secondary school, their 2nd and 3rd term fees is still pending and more students still require support for the new session.

All of the above cost are based on estimates as at August 2019. The audited account will be available soon.

Patience

Before I joined Project 3S, I hawked every evening to support my mother and my sick father and save some money for my termly fees which I could barely pay. With the support I get from OpenFees now, I have stopped hawking and I can focus on my education and my SSCE examination.

As a result of my focus and the daily inspiration I get from OpenFees, especially from my mentorship class with my mentor (aunty Miriam), I won a university education scholarship. I don't know what would have happened to me without OpenFees especially now that my father is dead.

The Problem

According to UNESCO Institute of Statistics, 60% of of youths aged 15-17 are not in school and one of the factors responsible for this is wealth. In general, 15-17 year olds are four times as likely to be out of school as children aged 6-12.

This is partly because Junior Secondary School completion is free while senior secondary school is not. Also, these young people are often of legal working age.

The Approach

To reduce the number youths who are out of school as a result of poverty in Nigeria, OpenFees designed Project Senior Secondary School Completion (Project 3S). The project uses approaches that can meet the immediate and future needs of the youths. Approaches such as direct fee funding, behaviour change communications and policy influence are used to ensure access, quality, completion and sustainability of basic education for poor youths in Nigeria.

The Results

As a result of these intervention over 90 students who may have dropped out of senior secondary school as a result of their inability to pay fees are now preparing to complete their senior secondary school examination and earn the basic education required to become active and productive citizens.
