The crisis with fear increasing among Sri Lankan society since the COVID -19 corona virus infections has risen to 935 as on 15.05.2020 and further health promotion bureau stated that there are active cases 449 individuals are under observation and receiving treatment at hospitals.

The Governments of Sri Lanka urged for gradual self-isolation and social distancing through stay home and stay safe operation from March 2020 by closing the schools and universities. The seriousness of the pandemic brought out when the government declared a continue and step by step on the government imposed a countrywide curfew. And the ongoing curfew will be extended as per the government's instruction.

The locked down and on-going curfews have impacted significantly on the daily wage workers and rural poor. The rural migrant workers and seasonal laborers are set back to the villages with their families. These daily wage workers are suffering a lot with no income, no works as people stay home and no interaction allowed and markets shutting down.

This appeal is to support 10000 the most vulnerable families in the rural areas of identified affected and those are especially the poor women-headed households and the breadwinners are facing hardships, without alternative source income such market sellers, fishermen, construction laborers, brick makers, pavement shop keepers etc. In we identified rural populations are fishing and agriculture, farming and related labor families and they face the on-going crisis with a lot of panic and scarcity without enough alternate income and the burden of household financial instability.

Above 75% of the population are the inhabitants of rural villages in the Sri Lanka, whereas poor rural households have less capacity to cope economically with the consequences of this outbreak and they are vulnerable who have less capacity to reach medical care, and the healthcare system are limited in remote areas.
