Food Aid

Over 90% of Afghan households are not getting enough to eat due to rising food prices, a high unemployment rate, decrease in workplace wages, lower crop production due to drought and natural disasters, and sanctions limiting imports. The situation in Afghanistan has been called the worst humanitarian crisis on Earth. It is estimated that 55% of the population, over 22 million people, are at crisis level hunger.

AAFF responds to this need by providing a month's worth of staple food supplies to families suffering from food insecurity. Since 2022, AAFF has provided thousands of people a month's worth of staple food supplies.

AAFF PARTNERS WITH AFGHAN COMMUNITIES TO PROVIDE ESSENTIAL PROGRAMS THAT EMPOWER AFGHANS TO LIVE WITH WORTH, VALUE, AND DIGNITY.

Computer Centers

AAFF partners with Afghan communities to offer additional educational opportunities in computer training for up to 1,000 Afghan girls a year. AAFF provides free computer training courses to Afghan girls in 2 public schools in Northern Afghanistan. Since 2011, AAFF has trained over 6,500 girls in the computer training courses.

One student said, “I am proud as an Afghan girl I proved to my parents I am not less than boys and neither are they better than me. I am happy to prove that I can improve my computer skills and I can make my future brighter.”

AAFF's programs support human rights, reduce the number of unnecessary hardships, and empower Afghans to enhance their lives and communities. Join our partnership so we can build hope with more Afghan communities.

Clean Water

The UN states, “access to safe water, sanitation and hygiene is the most basic need for health and wellbeing.” In 2021, it was estimated that only 67% of Afghans have access to water, but it's often not safe to drink. Most Afghans must collect water outside their homes requiring long walks carrying heavy buckets in extreme temperatures. Often the nearest water source, such as a shallow well or stream, could be contaminated or polluted. About half of the deaths of Afghan children under the age of 5 are from water-borne diseases. AAFF responds to this need by partnering with Afghan communities to provide wells and water storage systems in their communities. Since 2007, AAFF has completed over 450 clean water systems.
