

Made Clean

The Made Clean program continues to bring hope to Syrian refugees through a mobile laundry service and an accompanying children's program. Until this year, our cycle in each camp only lasted for three months; however, in 2022, we extended the program so that we could spend a year in each camp. This extra time allowed us to build deeper relationships with families and enrich the children's program with new educational, psychosocial, and awareness activities. This allowed the children to learn new things from an educational perspective. Teaching kids about personal hygiene is crucial to help them develop good habits that will benefit them throughout their lives.

A MOTHER'S APPRECIATION

Sometimes, it is easy to forget how much hope simple education activities can bring for families. One mother shared with us how happy she is that we are teaching her children because she herself has been deprived of education. She does not want her children to experience the same thing. She told us she would love to help change the way her children think so that they can get out of the environment they are currently living in. She is so happy that they have started to change for the better during their time with us.
