

Children and their families affected by the Mayon volcano eruption need your help!

The June 13 Mayon volcano eruption has forced more than 13,000 residents, including small children, to take refuge in 22 evacuation centers in Albay province. The Mayon volcano remains under Alert Level 3, which indicates high level of volcanic unrest that could drive additional eruptions, with an estimated 9,338 families or 36,814 persons affected in 26 barangays in Albay province. DepEd also estimates that 47 schools, 18,574 learners, 772 teaching personnel, and 109 non-teaching personnel will be affected.

The number of affected population is still expected to increase as more information comes in.

Save the Children Philippines has deployed its humanitarian response team to Albay and we need your support for what comes next. Save the Children Philippines is helping affected children and their families needing immediate and lifesaving assistance by bringing interventions such as multipurpose cash assistance, psychosocial support, and support for learning continuity for affected learners.

Your support today can help our teams deliver immediate aid to children and families being affected by the eruption in Albay.
